

Touristic Romania

Gifted with a varied and spectacular relief, advantaged by its climate, allowing tourism the entire year, gifted with a rich fauna and flora, with a large number of historical, architectural and artistic monuments, România can satisfy the preferences from different areas of the intern and internacional demand.

România is gifted with a varied touristic potencial. The Romanian littoral at the Black Sea has a length of 244 km and numerous large beaches covered with fine sand while the Danube Delta has a varied fauna and flora. In the centre of the country, the beauty of the Carpathian Mountains circles the Transylvanian Tableland. The numerous springs and lakes with therapeutic qualities form the base for the development of spas.

România also has a large number of historical places, like the Dacian Citadels and numerous old cities and villages. At this list of natural and touristic attractions we have to add the economical and social realisations, interesting for all visitors. And, in the end, the already renowned traditional Romanian hospitality.

Real estate Bucharest

After the revolution from December 1989, the Romanian tourism has known an economic reform, which materialised in the privatisation of all the touristic centres, the decentralisation and autonomy of the touristic enterprises, which all became commercial companies.

Since the middle of 1991, these companies have transformed themselves into limited responsibility firms like the companies in other countries with a developed tourism.

At the same time, in 1991, we passed at the classification of hotels and restaurants by the number of stars, aligning with the international standards.

More and more large companies are investing in the Romanian tourism, contributing to the capitalisation of the touristic potential of our country and to the improvement of the services' quality in the Romanian tourism.
